

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

August 3, 2026

Jennah Morgan Named a 2026 HousingWire Insider

National General Lender Services leader recognized for driving innovation, operational excellence, and technology transformation across the mortgage servicing industry

[Scottsdale, Arizona] — National General Lender Services (NGLS) is pleased to share that Jennah Morgan, Senior Director of Business Technology Strategy, has been named a 2026 HousingWire Insider. The annual award recognizes operational leaders whose expertise, execution, and leadership help drive meaningful results and innovation across the housing industry.

Selected as one of 85 professionals nationwide, Morgan was recognized for her leadership in business services, change management, and product ownership, helping advance technology and operational initiatives that support mortgage servicers and homeowners.

Over the past year, Morgan has led the AI roadmap for the organization along with the delivery of enhanced reporting capabilities that provide clients with more actionable data and stronger visibility into their programs, particularly during catastrophe events. Her work continues to strengthen how technology, data, and process design come together to improve operational efficiency, support better decision-making, and enhance the customer experience.

Known for translating complex business challenges into practical solutions, she plays a key role in helping NGLS deliver scalable, technology-enabled solutions that create value for clients while supporting homeowners throughout the insurance servicing lifecycle.

A complete list of the 2026 HousingWire Insiders is available at <https://www.housingwire.com/articles/introducing-the-2026-housingwire-insiders>.

About National General Lender Services

National General Lender Services elevates portfolio insurance monitoring strategies for mortgage servicers with tailored, compliant solutions focused on the customer experience. As your partner, we aim to achieve exceptional results with the highest level of guarantees. We deliver outstanding value by leveraging our deep expertise, advanced technology, and responsive service to ensure the highest levels of customer satisfaction and compliance for both you and your customers — empowered by Allstate.